

2020 Rage Expo to be held online in November

The 2020 edition of the Rage Expo will be held digitally from 6 to 8 November 2020.

With the annual video gaming exhibition making its digital debut, fans can look forward to three days of fun and interactive streamed content that they can pick and choose from at their leisure – whether they want to stay for one hour or six.

Rage can even be enjoyed around a braai this year, or anywhere with an internet connection for that matter.

As most events this year have gone into the cloud because of the pandemic, virtual events are becoming more seamless and commonplace.

Michael James, founder and project manager of Rage, says: "We've learned a lot from attending other online events throughout the year, and have been making notes on what we liked and what we didn't.

"We believe we've created a unique virtual experience that might not be what you've come to love and enjoy about a physical Rage Expo, but we hope it will keep you going until we can all connect with each other again in person.

"And while it may not be quite the same experience fans are used to, it's different, hopefully, good different. It's our 18th birthday so we would love for you to join us as we celebrate all our favourite things about gaming."
